Our process

Research

We work with community partners to identify pain points, identify opportunities, and scope projects.

Community engagement

Through advisory groups and participatory action, we create plans that meet neighborhood criteria.

Design/build

Using tactical urbanist methods, we design and build spaces that are accessible and foster community.

Operation

We invite people into projects, provide programming, and collect data.

Impact report

By analyzing qualitative and quantitative data, we document findings and provide a path forward for continued development.

Our work

Community pop-ups

We work alongside communities to activate vacant properties and transform them into communal living rooms, third spaces, and hosts for regular programming. They serve as hubs for on-the-ground research to determine long-term placemaking opportunities.

Special projects

We leverage our proven placemaking methodology to support community partners in bringing their projects to life. We offer a range of services, drawing from our past work and tailored to project needs.

Test kitchen

We develop prototype interventions that bring joy and promote urban livability. We test them in our community, and scale them into viable projects.
